First Line Manager Competencies for the SA Public Sector

What is the purpose of the First Line Manager Competency Framework?

The purpose of the First Line Manager Competency Framework is to define the management and leadership requirements that are relevant to all first line managers in the SA Public Sector.

This framework categorises two types of competencies relevant to first line managers: core and common.

The core competencies identified in the framework are relevant to all first line managers throughout the public sector, irrespective of location, agency or job role. The other component of the framework, the common competencies, are relevant to the majority of first line managers in the SA Public Sector, but may not be essential in every case.

A first line manager can be defined as someone who is responsible for managing resources, processes and people to deliver services to clients, and is typically classified at the ASO3 to ASO5 level.

This framework is just one of many tools available to public sector employees to guide performance management and development.

How can you use this competency framework?

There are two ways a competency framework can be used. Firstly, you can assess yourself against the competency level you would expect to have already achieved. Secondly, you can use a higher category of competency framework to assess your future development needs.

Before deciding on which competency framework to use for any purpose, it is best to look at the elements of the competencies and compare these with your current duties and decide what suits best.

For example, if you are a first line manager operating at the ASO2 or ASO3 level, you may find these competencies a valuable professional development tool. It is expected that as you progress through your career, you will acquire more of these competencies as you build your experience, skills and knowledge and move towards middle management roles.

If you have extensive experience as a first line manager, you should already possess many of these competencies. This material can provide a useful base for refining your abilities. If, having examined the competencies for first line managers, you realise that you can fulfil all of the requirements, we suggest using the 'bridging set' of competencies that provide a transition from first line to middle management.

Similarly, if you aspire to a first line management role, you may choose to use the First Line Management Competency Framework as a guide for your personal and professional development.

Please refer to the following chart as a guide to the SA Public Sector Competency Frameworks in broad relation to classification levels.

First Line Manager Competencies for the SA Public Sector

What is competency?

The SA Public Sector has adopted the Australian Government Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations' definition of competency, which states that competency is 'the consistent application of knowledge and skill to the standard of performance required in the workplace. It embodies the ability to transfer and apply skills and knowledge to new situations and environments'.

Competency must be demonstrated to the standard required in the workplace, and covers all aspects of workplace performance including:

- performing individual tasks
- managing a range of different tasks
- responding to contingencies or breakdowns, and
- dealing with responsibilities of the workplace, including working with others.

What are units of competency?

Units of competency in training packages are developed by industry to meet the identified skill needs of that industry. Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes the knowledge and skills that underpin competency as well as language, literacy and numeracy; and occupational health and safety requirements. The units of competency must be adhered to in assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

What are training packages?

Training packages are an integrated set of nationally endorsed standards, guidelines and qualifications for training, assessing and recognising people's skills. They have been developed by industry to meet the training needs of an industry, or group of industries. Competencies form an important component of training packages.

Unit of competency:	The name of the competency. Describes the overall outcome of the competency.
Elements:	Each unit is subdivided into a number of elements. Each element describes a more specific outcome.
Performance criteria:	These statements specify the level to which the job must be performed. They focus on the evidence required to prove competence.
Range of variables:	This identifies the vast array of contexts and conditions within which the performance criteria apply. It assists by relating the competency to different organisations/contexts and work practices.
Evidence guide:	The context within which an assessment should be undertaken. This section also lists the necessary underpinning skills and knowledge. In order to perform a competency to the required level, a person must possess the required skills and knowledge to be able to demonstrate the behaviours within that competency.

The benefits of using competencies and training packages

There are many reasons why governments and industries have embraced competencies and training packages. Essentially, competencies enable organisations, and professional and technical areas to recognise, describe and assess work performance against specified nationally agreed standards. Regular reviews of nationally endorsed training packages, such as the Public Sector Training Package (PSTP), ensure currency.

This in turn encourages:

- an integrated strategic approach to succession and workforce planning, recruitment and selection, and performance management and development
- better targeting of skill needs
- a more comprehensive understanding of required performance standards by both managers and employees
- consistency within and across agencies, and training and assessment providers.

At the personal level, the use of competencies enables individuals to:

- better understand job roles
- recognise and identify current skills, knowledge and abilities, as well as gaps
- establish career development plans and pathways
- gain nationally recognised qualifications.

The first line manager competencies

The first line manager competencies within this framework recognise that first line managers in the SA Public Sector need to perform their role to the standards expected by their agency.

The competencies selected for first line managers in the SA Public Sector are consistent with the approaches of other jurisdictions and public sectors internationally. The majority of competencies identified in the framework were drawn from the PSTP, and specific competencies were also drawn from the Business Services Training Package (BSTP). Using these existing competencies has a number of advantages. The PSTP was developed by Government Skills Australia, the recognised body representing the public service industry on vocational education and training issues.

All endorsed training packages are closely linked with their particular industry. For example, production of the PSTP is a result of wide consultation with stakeholders in state, territory and commonwealth governments and represents the industry's agreement on the skills required to work effectively in the public sector. Similarly, the production of the BSTP is a result of consultation with the business sector throughout Australia, and represents the agreed standards required to work effectively in a business environment.

First line manager core competencies

The core competencies listed below are regarded as essential to first line managers employed within the SA Public Sector irrespective of job title, agency, organisation or location.

PSPGOV402B	Deliver and monitor a service to clients
PSPGOV403B	Use resources to achieve work unit goals
PSPGOV404B	Develop and implement work unit plans
PSPGOV406B	Gather and analyse information
PSPGOV422A	Apply government processes
PSPETHC401A	Uphold the values and principles of public service
PSPLEGN401A	Use public sector financial processes
PSPMNGT603B	Facilitate people management

The core competencies are overarched by the requirement of all SA Public Sector employees to behave ethically and comply with the South Australian Public Sector Code of Ethics.

First line manager common competencies

The common competencies are relevant to the majority of first line managers in the SA Public Sector, but may not be essential in every case. For example, not all first line managers may promote innovation. These competencies are important to first line managers who wish to improve their current performance or future career options.

In some cases, these units represent specific activities which are embedded in the core competencies. For example, valuing diversity is a significant consideration in the lead work teams unit.

PSPGOV408A	Value diversity
PSPGOV412A	Compose complex workplace documents
PSPGOV418A	Develop internal and external networks
PSPPOL403A	Give and receive policy information
PSPPROC406A	Procure goods and services
PSPHR402A	Administer human resource practices
BSBINN201A	Contribute to workplace innovation
BSBWOR501A	Manage personal work priorities and professional development

Bridging competencies

(Transition from first line to middle management)

Core competencies

The range of public sector classifications that fall within the definition of first line management is vast. For this reason, a second competency framework has been developed for those employees who have already developed significant experience and expertise against the First Line Manager Competency Framework, but are yet to step up to the competencies of the middle manager Competency Framework.

This additional framework of competencies is regarded as essential for highly experienced first line managers who are planning a transition from a first line management job role, into the functioning of a public sector middle manager.

PSPGOV502B	Develop client services
PSPGOV503B	Coordinate resource allocation and usage
PSPGOV504B	Undertake research and analysis
PSPGOV511A	Provide leadership
PSPGOV515A	Develop and use political nous
PSPETHC501B	Promote the values and ethos of public service
PSPLEGN501B	Promote compliance with legislation in the public sector
PSPOHS501A	Monitor and maintain workplace safety
PSOFIN501A	Apply public sector financial policies and processes

These common competencies are relevant to the majority of (but not all) experienced first line managers who are planning a transition from a first line management role into the function of a public sector middle manager.

Common competencies

PSPGOV505A	Promote diversity
PSPGOV512A	Use complex workplace communication strategies
PSPGOV516A	Develop and use emotional intelligence
PSPGOV519A	Manage performance
PSPPOL502A	Advise on organisational policy
PSPSCI502A	Facilitate innovation and change through extension
BSBWOR501A	Manage personal work priorities and professional development

Where can I find these competencies?

Each training package has a national code. For example, the PSTP code is PSP04 and the BSTP is BSB07. There are more than 80 training packages covering a diverse range of industries.

All endorsed competencies have a national code that may be used to find that competency at training.gov.au (TGA), the database on Vocational Education and Training in Australia. TGA is the official national register of information on training packages, qualifications, courses, units of competency and registered training organisations.

To view the public sector competencies on the training.gov.au website, use the quick search function at the bottom of the home page. In the nationally recognised training search field, type in PSTP or PSP04. Select the public sector link and the website will display the training package details including training package components, skills sets and units of competency.

More information on the PSTP can be found on the training.gov.au website.

Both the core and common competencies of the First Line Manager Competency Framework can be found on the above website. You may also find additional competencies relevant to your particular job role in other training packages.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased from 10.5 million to 12.5 million, and the number of people in the public sector who are employed in health care has increased from 2.5 million to 3.5 million (Department of Health 2000).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is the increasing demand for health care services. The population of the UK is ageing, and there is a growing number of people with chronic conditions such as heart disease, diabetes, and cancer. This has led to an increase in the number of people who need to be treated in hospitals and other health care settings.
