

In the case of those who cannot attend face-to-face learning experiences a PSMP Online Exception Program (OEP) is provided.

Target Audience

The OEP is designed for those who have extenuating circumstances precluding their ability to attend the face-to-face cohorts. The OEP is not available for individual catch-up on units.

Program Delivery

Participants in the Exception Program will engage in fully online self-directed learning supported by the Virtual Learning Environment, with the addition of one webinar per unit, and email and telephone support. One course entry point will be provided with each unit offered only once per year to a minimum of 20 students and a maximum of 30.

Because of the rich media available on the QUT Blackboard system, including library access, and the development of webinars and consultations to support participants, this Exception Program will maintain opportunities for those in remote areas to access good coverage of the learning materials. Enrolment in this mode will require additional motivation and commitment to the fully online program. However, these participants will also have access to the Blackboard National community site and limited online connection with their academic staff, and in doing so, will be able to share in the cohort connections available to students who learn in the predominantly face to face mode.

Application Considerations

1. Applicants Submit a standard QUT Application with the addition of an “Online Exception Program Justification”
2. Technical access. Applicants will require a minimum level of technology to access the OEP Webinars and the standard PSMP Blackboard Learning Management System. Course requirements are outlined in the “Online Exception Program Justification”
